

Congregation: Moreover, we realize that the Apostle Paul tells us to be reconciled to God and that involves also seeking to be reconciled to one another.

Leader: Let us therefore, repent of any sinful act or thought that harms our relationship with one another and recommit ourselves to our Lord and to seeking to treat each other as we want to be treated. Let us also call upon all Christians to do the same.

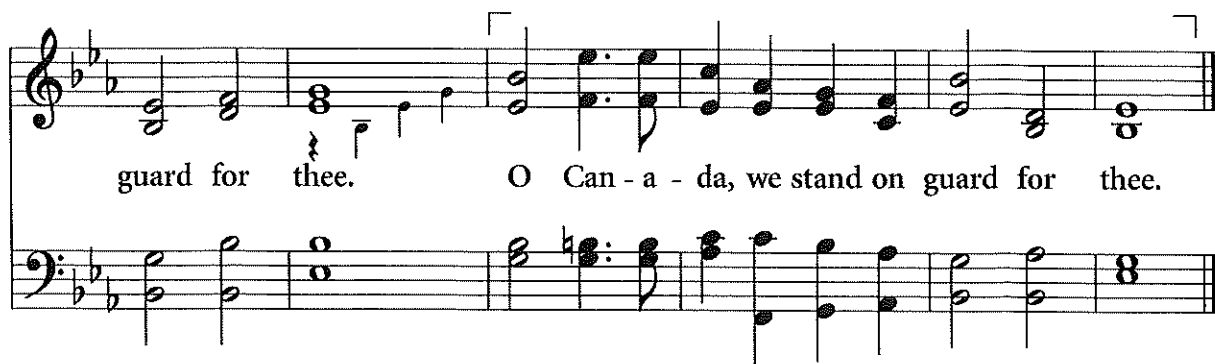

Congregation: We will pray for one another and for our nation. We will strive to allow the Holy Spirit to work both in and through us, to help our nation live up to its stated belief the all people are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Leader: May God help us to make a positive difference in our nation through the way that we live and relate to each other. In so doing, let us lift up the name of Jesus.

Congregation: May God bless us and may God bless America. (JMS)
